

IASH Celebrates the 2026 AHA Honors Awarded to Gregory Fink and Carlos Ferrario

The Inter-American Society of Hypertension is proud to congratulate two distinguished members of its leadership on their recognition by the American Heart Association Council on Hypertension.

Gregory C. Fink, PhD, FAHA, Vice President and Treasurer of IASH, has been selected to receive the 2026 Excellence Award for Hypertension Research. This prestigious distinction recognizes excellence in hypertension research, major scientific discoveries and sustained contributions throughout a productive career.

Carlos M. Ferrario, MD, FAHA, FAPS, FISH, FACC, Immediate Past President of IASH, has been selected to receive the 2026 Hypertension Distinguished Achievement Award. This recognition honors his longstanding scientific contributions, international leadership, teaching, mentorship and service to the hypertension community.

Both awards will be presented in connection with the American Heart Association Hypertension Scientific Sessions 2026, to be held October 7–11 in Arlington, Virginia.

These distinctions are a source of enormous pride for IASH and reflect the exceptional influence that Dr. Fink and Dr. Ferrario have had on hypertension research, education and clinical care across the Americas and worldwide.

On behalf of the Inter-American Society of Hypertension, I extend our warmest congratulations to Greg and Carlos on these truly well-deserved honors.

<https://professional.heart.org/en/meetings/hypertension/abstracts-and-awards>

Prof. Nicolás F. Renna, MD, PhD, ISHF, FESC President Inter-American Society of Hypertension